The image shows the ENLETS Messenger application interface. On the left, a sidebar lists 'Broadcasts', 'Channels' (including #Financial Investigation, #Project 246, #Marketing, #B2B Sales, #Fair planning, #Bowling, #New colleagues), and 'Conversation' (with 5 unread messages). The main area shows a channel named '#Financial Investigation' with 23 members. A message from Robert Mischnick says: 'On the 2nd December, the Financial Investigations TIG hosted its last meeting of the year. The theme will be virtual currencies.' Antje Proske replies: 'Thanks for the info. How will the event take place?' Robert Mischnick replies: 'It will be an online event. You will receive the access data in the next few days.' Barbara Schneider replies: 'That sounds very interesting. Thanks for the summary, Robert.' A message from Lisa Klein says: 'Lisa Klein has joined the channel.' On the right, the 'Channel Info' panel shows the channel's icon, name, and various settings like 'Mute', 'Favorite', 'Invite', and 'More'. The 'Members' section shows pending invitations and membership requests. The 'Shared files' section shows a PDF file named 'Financial Investigations.pdf' (1.3 mb). The 'Channel type' is listed as '#'. The 'End-to-end encryption' and 'Write permissions' sections are shown. The 'Invite rights' and 'Join / Leave notifications' sections are also visible. On the mobile phone screen, the same conversation is displayed, showing the messages and file sharing between Antje Proske, Robert Mischnick, and Barbara Schneider.
